THE SUMMERHILL

The Summerhill introduces a new landmark in Toronto's most storied neighbourhood. Situated directly across from the historic North Toronto Station, The Summerhill's 62 carefully considered residences represent a labour of love and a profound respect for place. Created by Woodcliffe in collaboration with architectsAlliance, Gluckstein Design and Claude Cormier + Associates, The Summerhill offers refined design, unobstructed views, peaceful privacy, and the warmth of home.

Woodcliffe Landmark Properties was established with a vision to preserve, restore, and repurpose Toronto's architectural heritage. That vision took root in Summerhill, a community in which the company has remained deeply invested for many years. Woodcliffe's restoration of the North Toronto Station, now the Summerhill LCBO, reintroduced a 1916 Beaux-Arts landmark to the neighbourhood.

The developer's restorations and additions to the historic Shops of Summerhill, known affectionately as "The Five Thieves," helped preserve the main-street character that has defined this part of the city since the late 1890s. These projects were acts of care, ensuring these places continue to serve the neighbourhood for generations to come. Years in the making, The Summerhill continues that tradition.

DESIGN BY INCHES

The Summerhill captures the indescribable quality and feeling of home. It reflects a deeply considered approach – one of design by inches. Every decision was made deliberately, inch by inch, to deliver comfort, functionality, privacy, and enduring quality. These residences are an evolution of modern Summerhill living: generous proportions, thoughtful layouts, and the ease of expertly managed service.

The residences feel more like private homes than traditional condominiums. From suite layouts and window placement to outdoor spaces and circulation, every element is designed to embrace gracious living. The Summerhill is the accumulation of over five years of consideration that ultimately led to a living experience that feels intuitive and profoundly personal.

A REFINED ARRIVAL EXPERIENCE

Tucked along Birch Avenue, the building's private porte cochère, 24-hour valet, and lobby entrance offer a more discreet point of arrival, set apart from the pace of Yonge Street. The inviting, Brian Gluckstein-designed lobby features custom, wood-panelled walls and elegant furnishings.

Two passenger elevators, each with finely-finished interiors, provide efficient access throughout the building. A dedicated service elevator is available for use by tradespeople, deliveries, and building maintenance. For added peace of mind, on-site management, concierge, and porters deliver attentive, anticipatory service, supported by seamless oversight of business operations.

SERVICE AT THE HIGHEST STANDARD

The Summerhill is supported by an exceptional service ethos that quietly enhances daily life. Highly trained staff discreetly provide thoughtful and anticipatory support, allowing residents to enjoy privacy and peace of mind. All service staff will be hired and trained by Charles MacPherson, widely regarded as the global authority on household and hospitality management. Charles MacPherson and his team have served a number of Canada's most prominent families and trained teams at many of the world's leading luxury hotels.

A curated amenity program extends the living experience beyond each residence, thoughtfully composed to reflect a considered approach to daily life. An elegantly designed guest suite, a landscaped wraparound 5th-floor terrace, and a fully equipped fitness studio with a private training area are paired with a dedicated spa featuring a steam and sauna, alongside a residents' lounge, private dining room, and bar.

A NEIGHBOURHOOD OF CHARM AND CHARACTER

Summerhill and Rosedale are among the world's most unique neighbourhoods. There's a true sense of community here – warm, connected, cultured, and deeply walkable. The neighbourhoods are home to tree-lined streets, sprawling estate homes, and green spaces, and are part of the largest ravine system in North America. At the same time, The Summerhill is in the heart of a world-class metropolis – walkable to Yorkville, connected by transit, and minutes from Downtown and the Financial District.

VIEWS FOR GENERATIONS

While the heritage brick at the street level mirrors the neighbourhood's Victorian vernacular, the modern, 32-storey glass tower asserts itself in the skyline, marking a pointed evolution in contemporary residential living in Summerhill.
With just 62 suites starting on the seventh floor – the majority boasting protected, unobstructed views – Woodcliffe intentionally reduced the number of residences per floor to allow for gracious proportions and truly incomparable views.

The suites range from 1,100 to over 6,000 square feet, with almost all offering two to three exposures. The floor-to-ceiling glass, column-free corner windows and staggered terraces maximise light and overlook tree-lined streets, the city skyline, the historic North Toronto Station – and even Lake Ontario from higher floors.
